Whenever there is a conflict, the provisions herein shall prevail over those in ITBs.

The instant procurement for authorized vendors is being conducted under the PPRA Ordinance, 2002 (as amended) and the Public Procurement Rules, 2004. The authorization is aligned with the provisions of public procurement as outlined in Section 2(l) of the PPRA Ordinance, which states:

““public procurement” means acquisition of goods, services or construction of any works financed wholly or partly out of the public fund and includes disposal of public assets and commercial transactions between procuring agency and private party, in terms of which the private party is allowed to-

- (i) perform a procuring agency’s assigned functions, including operations and management, on its behalf;*
- (ii) assume the use of public asset; or*
- (iii) receive a benefit either from budget or revenue of the Federal Government or from fees or charges to be collected by the private party for performing the procuring agency’s function or any combination thereof;”*

Furthermore, the entire procurement structure has been designed in accordance with Rule 4 of PPR, 2004, to ensure fairness, transparency, value for money, and efficiency. The rule states:

“4. Principles of procurements-

Procuring agencies, while engaging in procurements, shall ensure that the procurements are conducted in a fair and transparent manner, the object of procurement brings value for money to the agency and the procurement process is efficient and economical”.

Since the proposed arrangement involves a variety of solutions across the system, it incorporates the broadest possible specifications as per Rule 10 of PPR, 2004. Accordingly, the entire procurement process and structure align with these principles and the relevant provisions of PPR, 2004, including but not limited to Rules 15, 21, 23, 29, and associated rules. SECTION V: SCOPE OF WORK

A. SCHEDULE OF REQUIREMENTS

FBR intends to cover all relevant leather sector manufacturing, processing, assembly, conversion, packing, and/or dispatch lines in Pakistan as per the following installation schedule:

Cumulative 20% lines to be covered by: _____

Cumulative 50% lines to be covered by: _____

Cumulative 100% lines to be covered by: _____

Authorized vendor(s) should have all required equipment (hardware and software) readily available to deploy the leather sector Production Monitoring, Counting across relevant facilities throughout Pakistan. Given the diversity of leather sector operations, the system shall follow a hybrid, technology-neutral approach. Depending on the facility type — tanneries producing hides/skins/leather sheets (Model A), finished goods manufacturers such as footwear, garments and leather goods units (Model B), or integrated facilities combining both (Model C) — the vendor shall deploy an appropriate combination of technologies including barcode/QR code scanning, area/length measurement, weighing, industrial sensors, machine-counter/PLC integration, AI-enabled cameras with edge computing, as applicable and approved by FBR.

B. TECHNICAL REQUIREMENT

A. Background

01. Business Objectives of the FBR

- i. FBR intends to authorize vendors for deployment of a production monitoring system in the leather sector to capture production data from notified leather processing, footwear, garments and leather goods facilities
- ii. The system shall monitor diverse measurable outputs including processed hides and skins, finished leather, sheets, rolls, footwear, garments, bags, gloves, belts, wallets and other leather goods, using pieces, pairs, square feet, square meters, rolls, bundles, cartons, kilograms, metric tons or any other unit approved by FBR.
- iii. The solution may be based on barcode/QR scanning, RFID, weighing systems, industrial sensors, counters, camera/video analytics, image recognition or any alternative solution approved by FBR.

B. Business Functions and Performance Requirements

01. Scope of Production Monitoring

The system shall monitor production and/or at points including raw hide/skin receiving, tanning output, wet blue/crust/finished leather transfer, splitting/shaving/dyeing/finishing/measuring stage, roll/sheet measurement point, cutting, stitching/assembly line, footwear pairing and packing point, finished goods warehouse entry and dispatch gate.

The system shall record product type, processing stage, SKU/article code, batch/lot number, grade/quality category, quantity in pieces, pairs, rolls, cartons, bundles, square feet, square meters, kilograms or other approved unit, facility, line, date/time, shift/batch and rejected/reworked/downgraded items where identifiable.

02. Functional Performance Requirements

The system shall count and/or measure notified leather outputs, identify product type/SKU/article/batch/grade through approved identifiers, support multiple units of measurement, prevent duplicate counting, transmit secure structured data to FBR, generate product/SKU/batch/grade/unit/facility reports, capture exceptions and provide anomaly alerts and role-based dashboards.

03. System Components

The leather sector encompasses diverse manufacturing operations — from tanneries producing raw hides and finished leather sheets/rolls, to units manufacturing footwear, garments, and leather goods. As no single technology is suitable for all these environments, the Production Monitoring, Counting shall adopt a technology-neutral, hybrid approach. The Vendor shall propose one or a combination of technologies that best fits the facility type, as follows:

Model A — Tanneries and Leather Sheet/Roll Producers

Applicable to facilities whose primary output is raw hides, wet blue, crust leather, finished leather sheets, rolls, or bundles (measured by area or weight). The proposed solution should include: (i) area or length measurement technology integrated with leather measuring machines to record square footage/metres per hide or sheet; (ii) weighing systems for monitoring raw hides, chemicals, and intermediate/finished leather bundles at dispatch; (iii) barcode or QR code scanning of production batches wherever applicable, rolls, bundles; and (iv) industrial sensors or AI-enabled cameras at key transfer or dispatch points to validate movement and count. RFID may be used for trolley or pallet tracking within the facility.

Model B — Finished Goods Manufacturers (Footwear, Garments, Leather Goods)

Applicable to facilities manufacturing footwear pairs, leather garments, bags, gloves, belts, wallets, or other finished goods (counted by piece, pair, or carton). The proposed solution should include: (i) barcode or QR code scanning at stitching/assembly lines, packing stations, and dispatch gates; (ii) AI-enabled industrial cameras for automated counting, packing line verification, and dispatch validation; (iii) industrial sensors for conveyor monitoring, machine triggering, and gate-level event validation; (iv) machine-counter or PLC integration to capture production data directly from cutting, stitching, pressing, molding, or finishing equipment; and (v) weighing at dispatch for carton/pallet verification.

Model C — Integrated/Hybrid Facilities (Tanning + Finishing + Finished Goods)

Applicable to facilities that carry out tanning, finishing, and manufacture of finished goods under one roof. The proposed solution shall be a combination of Model A and Model B technologies deployed at appropriate production stages, ensuring end-to-end traceability from raw hide input through to finished-goods dispatch. Where AI-based image processing or video analytics is proposed, the solution shall incorporate edge computing or equivalent local processing to enable real-time analytics, reduce bandwidth requirements, and ensure operational continuity during communication outages. The system must cover all applicable monitoring units within the facility, as defined and notified by FBR.

In all models, the system components shall include industrial PCs or edge devices, local data storage, secure network equipment, web-based dashboards, FBR integration APIs, product master mapping, audit logs, and anomaly alert modules. Vendors may propose any alternative or superior technology or combination that demonstrably achieves the required monitoring accuracy, reliability, cybersecurity, and uptime, subject to technical evaluation and approval by FBR.

04. Product Master and Unit Mapping

The vendor shall map product type, article code, SKU, batch, grade and unit of measurement with the relevant manufacturer and facility, including pieces, pairs, square feet/meters, weight, rolls, bundles and cartons.

05. Data, Dashboard, Security and Support

The system shall store data locally during connectivity failure, synchronize after restoration, encrypt data, and provide dashboards for daily production/dispatch, product-wise, article-wise, batch-wise, grade-wise, facility/line-wise and unit-wise reporting, exceptions, downtime, audit logs, device health and trend analysis. The vendor shall provide preventive/corrective maintenance, replacement, updates, training and on-site/remote support.

06. Proof of Concept and Evaluation Metrics

The POC shall demonstrate identification of product type, SKU/article, batch/lot, grade and unit of measurement with accurate count or measurement. Metrics shall include minimum 95% accuracy with preferred 99%, correct identification, support for pieces/pairs/square feet/weight, duplicate prevention, anomaly detection, dashboard transmission, uptime, audit trail quality, ease of deployment, scalability and cost-effectiveness.

07. Technical Evaluation Criteria

Evaluation shall consider experience in production monitoring, barcode/RFID, industrial automation, weighing/measurement integration, video analytics, architecture, accuracy, multi-unit support, hardware, software, dashboards, cybersecurity, FBR integration, nationwide maintenance, warranties, POC performance and cost-effectiveness.

A. Background
01.	Business Objectives of the FBR i. FBR intends to authorize vendors for deployment of a production monitoring system in the leather sector to capture real-time or near-real-time production, processing, packing and dispatch data from notified leather facilities under the Transformation Plan initiative.

	ii. The system shall cover relevant leather-sector outputs including raw hides and skins, wet blue, crust and finished leather, leather sheets, rolls, bundles, footwear, garments, bags, gloves, belts, wallets, upholstery components and other leather goods, using the appropriate unit of measure for each output. iii. The system shall support measurement and counting by pieces, pairs, square feet, square meters, kilograms, metric tons, rolls, bundles, cartons, pallets, SKU/article code, size, color, grade, batch/lot and any other identifier or unit approved by FBR. iv. Technology Approach — Hybrid Model: Recognising the diversity of leather sector operations, the system shall adopt a technology-neutral and hybrid approach. The Vendor shall propose a solution — or a combination of technologies — suited to the specific facility type and production environment, as follows: • For tanneries and leather sheet/roll producers: area or length measurement technology (integrated with leather measuring machines), weighing systems, barcode/QR code scanning, batch labelling, and AI-enabled cameras or sensors at transfer and dispatch points. • For finished goods manufacturers (footwear, garments, leather goods): barcode/QR code scanning at assembly and packing lines, AI-enabled industrial cameras for automated counting and dispatch validation, industrial sensors and machine-counter/PLC integration for production line data capture, and weighing at dispatch. • For integrated/hybrid facilities (tanning and finished goods under one roof): a combination of the above technologies deployed at each relevant production stage, covering the end-to-end production trail from raw hide receipt to finished goods dispatch. • RFID may additionally be used for reusable pallet, trolley, bin, or work-in-process tracking where appropriate. Where AI-based image processing is proposed, edge computing or equivalent local processing is required. Vendors may propose any alternative or superior technology, subject to FBR approval. v. The objective is to create a verifiable production trail from key production and conversion points to finished-goods dispatch, enabling reconciliation with sales tax, income tax, customs/export data and declarations submitted by taxpayers.

24.	Operational Acceptance Tests	24.1	The Operational Acceptance Tests (and repeats of such tests) shall be the primary responsibility of the FBR (in accordance with GCC Clause 9.9), but shall be conducted with the full cooperation of the Authorized Vendor during Commissioning of the System (or major components or Subsystem[s] if specified in the SCC and supported by the Technical Requirements), to ascertain whether the System (or major component or Subsystem[s]) conforms to the Technical Requirements and meets the standard of performance quoted in the Authorized Vendor's bid, including, but not restricted to, the functional and technical performance requirements. The Operational Acceptance Tests during Commissioning will be conducted as specified in the SCC, the Technical Requirements and/or the Agreed and Finalized Project Plan. At the FBR's discretion, Operational Acceptance Tests may also be performed on replacement Goods, upgrades and new version releases, and Goods that are added or field-modified after Operational Acceptance of the System.

Annexures

Annexure – A

Examples of alternative solutions for production counting in the leather sector

Alternate solution	Description
Image based recognition system	An image-based recognition system shall count total production units against each SKU, product category, grade, batch, or production line by capturing high-resolution images as items move through defined processing, finishing, measurement, packing, or dispatch stages. Cameras shall be installed at critical control points, such as finishing line exits, measurement or grading points, footwear assembly exits, leather goods packing stations, carton sealing points, warehouse intake points, or dispatch gates. The system shall utilize industrial-grade cameras, appropriate lighting, image-processing tools, and machine-learning algorithms to detect, classify, and associate hides, skins, leather pieces, finished leather, footwear pairs, garments, bags, cartons, or pallets with the relevant SKU, grade, batch, or product category. As production units are detected, the software shall apply de-duplication logic and transmit time-stamped production counts to FBR's dashboard or designated data platform.
Video analytics	Video analytics deployed on leather processing, manufacturing, packing, or dispatch lines shall count production units against each SKU, grade, product category, batch, carton, or pallet by capturing continuous video footage as units move through critical control points. Video cameras shall be installed at strategic locations such as finishing line exits, measurement or grading points, cutting/stitching line exits, footwear assembly exits, packing stations, carton sealing points, warehouse intake points, and dispatch gates. The system shall utilize high-definition industrial cameras, edge processing units, and AI-powered video analytics software to detect, classify, and count production units while associating each count with the relevant SKU, grade, batch, production line, carton, pallet, and timestamp. The solution shall include safeguards against double counting, manual bypass, camera obstruction, and connectivity failures.

Annexure – B

For training and validating the proposed Computer Vision, image-recognition, OCR, sensor, barcode/QR/RFID, or alternative production monitoring software for the leather sector, sample data/video feeds shall be collected from modern automated facilities as well as conventional facilities in Pakistan. Data shall be captured across critical stages such as finishing line exit, measurement or grading point, cutting or stitching line exit, footwear assembly exit, packing line, carton sealing point, warehouse intake, or dispatch gate. The objective is to evaluate variance between actual production counts and counts generated by the proposed system, and to assess overall system accuracy, reliability, and auditability.

The software shall be trained and evaluated on the following parameters:

1) Counting Efficiency

- Ability to uniquely identify and count closely grouped production units, including hides, skins, sides, pieces, finished leather, footwear pairs, garments, bags, cartons, or pallets placed in defined zones.
- Ability to identify variations in unit appearance, including different sizes, grades, colours, textures, shapes, packaging formats, labels, and batch/SKU identifiers.
- Ability to accurately detect and count under varying lighting and operating conditions common to the leather sector.

- Ability to process video feeds from multiple cameras covering large or complex regions of interest that cannot be effectively monitored by a single camera.
- Ability to accurately count production units across different operational stages, including finishing line exit, measurement or grading point, cutting or stitching line exit, footwear assembly exit, packing line, carton sealing point, warehouse intake, or dispatch gate.
- Measurement of real-time processing capability of the Computer Vision model, including its ability to count multiple units moving simultaneously within the same region of interest.
- Evaluation of the model's ability to distinguish production units from background noise such as human movement, equipment motion, trolleys, or other operational activities.
- Assessment of system performance and reliability under varying environmental conditions, including varying lighting, humidity, dust, chemicals, colour variation, surface texture variation, reflective or wet surfaces, manual handling, and mixed batch movement typical of leather processing and manufacturing operations.

2) System Integration and Usability

- Assessment of reliability and continuity of video feeds transmitted to the computing unit running the Computer Vision model.
- Evaluation of accuracy, format, and consistency of production count data generated and shared by the Computer Vision system.
- Assessment of the need for system-generated alerts to address anomalies, disruptions, or potential underreporting/malpractice.
- Collection of user feedback on dashboard and interface usability for leather sector operators, management, and auditors.
- Evaluation of maintenance, calibration, and technical support requirements for cameras, edge devices, and supporting hardware to ensure sustained operational performance.
